

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A navigation device is provided with a communication portion that is capable of communication with a server that distributes data, and a data storage portion that stores data downloaded from the server. When start-up of the vehicular navigation device is initiated, communication with the server is executed and data is downloaded prior to the completion of start-up of the vehicular navigation device.